Background

VoxVision Video Productions Ltd was established in 2006 by Bob Sanderson who is a Master Member of the Institute of Videography and an Associate of the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Art.

He had previously spent thirty years in telecommunications and IT sales working for such companies as Siemens, AT&T and Ericsson and has since worked hard to build a second career as a video producer, actor and musician.

As an Actor, he has spent a lot of time in television studios and on location and decided to cross the line into production. He is also used to working within schools as he performs educational theatre country wide. Since forming the company he has applied his extensive and diverse business background, technical abilities, acting and voice skills to delighting and exceeding the expectations of VoxVision's fast growing customer base.
